NOTES:

16mm Color Prints: It is important to understand very few 16mm Ektachrome prints survive, after all these many years, with their full color saturation intact. Most have faded to the red with a minimum of the other chroma components preserved. We will do our best to bring out what we can but do not expect these prints to look as they did when first made.

16mm Newfilm: For the most part 16mm color newfilm does retain its original color saturation since it was camera original and not print stock. These films transfer very well and if there is a magnetic sound track, it will be preserved in the conversion to digital.

The Process: Film is transferred at an uncompressed rate of 27MB/sec to a 10-bit YUV 4:2:2 D1 (720 x 486) digital file. Customer should supply a fully formatted (1TB or less) hard drive on to which we will save your material. Customers needing only DVD's from their films may opt to have us make them from the 10-bit master. After a period of 60 days, if there are no issues with the work, the master will be deleted.

Waiver of Liability - Copying Clause

All contracts with TFG Transfer are accepted with the understanding that all film delivered to us is covered by the owner against damage or loss. TFG Transfer takes every reasonable precaution for the safe handling and storage of the film but assumes no responsibility for its damage or loss.

In cases where the films being presented to TFG Transfer are copyrighted prints, current US copyright law allows the film prints owner to make a single digital copy (digital migration) for his/her own personal use. Only a single copy may be made and the owner must retain possession of the film print forever.

TFG Transfer uses the Marconi CCD Line Array telecine to convert 16mm film to video. Incorporating gentle, continuous-motion film movement via a digital capstan servo transport, the Marconi B3410 features both positive/reversal and negative film handling capabilities. Our system is equipped with a Corporate Communications computerized scene-by-scene color corrector.

SD film transfers can be done as either uncompressed 10-bit avi files using a BlackMagic capture card or as ProRes 422HQ. Quasi-HD film transfers, using our Snell & Wilcox upconverter, are always done as ProRes 422HQ.

The BlackMagic/ProRes files will be provided to the client on their supplied flash or hard drive for $20. Drives MUST be wiped clean and formatted as either NTFS or exFat. We do not accept Mac drives. If a drive is not supplied, one will be purchased and provided to you at local rates. Charges are per reel/per film.
